Profile

Accomplished interdisciplinary Artist, strategic Educational Leader and Educator with extensive Research, Instructional Design, Executive and Creative Direction experience. Expertise in game audio, AR/VR, post, studio practice, traditional and experimental composition, production, installation, interactivity and intermedia art. A dedicated practitioner and educator with acute focus on student success, diversity, efficient and effective project actualization, collaboration, and fostering high morale. A passionate advocate for diverse and exploratory approaches to sound art, and developing innovative technologies to enable new forms of creativity and expression.

Currently, Audio Lead on two multiplatform/VR games, sound design, composition, VO, adaptivity and implementation; release 2018. Chris is the Academic Department Chair of the Sound Arts, Interactive Audio, and Audio baccalaureate programs, and the North America Chair of Instructional Design at SAE/Expression College, the Executive and Creative Director of THE STUDI/O, an Apple Certified Master Trainer, and Fellow of the Higher Education Academy – the UK Professional Standards Framework for teaching and learning in higher education. Chris completed a dissertation at The University of Edinburgh, researching the applications and efficacy of multimedia in interactive augmented reality environments.

For years, Chris worked closely with one of Billboard Magazine's Top Ten Producers of all time, 57 #1 Hits, multi-Grammy, Emmy & multi-Platinum Producer & Artist Narada Michael Walden at Tarpan Studios. As a Producer, Engineer, Composer, Arranger, Music Supervisor, Sound Designer, Programmer and Performer, Chris has worked with artists and companies including Apple, Google, Legends The Game, LeapFrog, PETA, KSFR 90.7 FM, Twisted Tools, Sting, Elton John, James Taylor, Carole King, Billy Joel, Smokey Robinson, Scientist, PSY, Playboy, GQ, Vogue, Salvatore Ferragamo, and Katy Perry.

"A man for all seasons...from Ahmad Jamal to the hippest in contemporary music, Chris knows how it's done...a whiz with the computer and the drums. Chris has the genius touch." – Narada Michael Walden

- [2018] (Video Game/TBA) Audio Lead, multiplatform/VR game, sound design, composition, VO, adaptivity and implementation.
- [2017] (Video Game/TBA) Audio Lead, multiplatform/VR game, sound design, composition, VO, adaptivity and implementation.
- [2017] Stratum, Center for New Music, San Francisco, CA.
- [2016] Salvatore Ferragamo, Composer, Lo Splendore Della Vita, International.
- [2016] StocHastAkOviCh, autocomposer
A fully programmable sequencer application developed in a graphical environment. Probability distribution autocomposer functionality with Dmitri Shostakovich homage-scale constraint. Controls for independent and global pitch and velocity, independent and vector linear pitch and modulation, independent and global note on/off, and quick-drum-sequencer section.
- [2015] Electroacoustic Compositions for Guitar featuring Mike Keneally
- [2015] Nightingale, sonification of Phaedrus
Plato's dialog Phaedrus, represented by sound and musical traits; morphology; phonology.
- [2015] Skeuomorph, algorithmic concatenation
Atmospheric story generated from a narration library employing corpus-based concatenative synthesis.
- [2015] Art Walk, Interactive Audio Open Studios, Expression College, Emeryville, CA. Interactive Multimedia Exhibitions.
- [2014] Simulacrum, formant transformations with Kyma.
- [2014] Designing Musical Software, San Francisco State University, A.S. Theater, San Francisco, CA. Presentation of live audio coding in a graphical environment, followed by an interactive performance utilizing original music software.
- [2014] Earthquakes (Remix), The Candle Thieves.
- [2013] PSY, Composer, Vogue Italia feature, International.

- [2013] C², Boulevard, Chicago, IL. Electronic performance, laptop, physical objects, electronics, controllers.
- [2013] Face2Phase, facial-tracking gestural controller for audio and visual synthesis.
- [2012] Katy Perry, algorithmically produced composition, Vogue Italia, International.
- [2012] Adaptive Systems Toolkit, development in Kismet, graphical environments for interactive design.
- [2011] GQ, Composer, International.
- [2011] PETA, Composer, Save the Seals campaign, International.
- [2011] Laptop Quintet, Impromptu, CCRMA, Stanford University, Stanford, CA.
- [2010] Playboy, Composer, features, International.
- [2010] Twisted Tools, Sound Designer and Drum Programmer for Vortex, Scapes, Rolodecks, S-Layer, and Buffeater instruments.
- [2010] SynthesImage, spectral synthesis, audio sonification of imagery.
- [2009] CodeTrain, algorithmic analysis and performance
Algorithmic compositional tool written in LISP to create new performances in the style of John Coltrane. The software is designed to recognize patterns in rhythm, note order, and melodic, harmonic and contrapuntal movements and progressions, producing new music in the style of the recorded data set.
- [2008] C², Tonic Room, Chicago, IL. Electronic performance, laptop, physical objects, electronics, controllers.
- [2008] Glitch Machine v1.2
LISP-coded system used to analyze and modulate rhythm data sets and create rhythmically new, complex and polyrhythmic patterns.
- [2007] eLiS, list sonification
Data analysis tool written in Common LISP. Originally intentioned to provide an auditory representation of inaudible information such as earthquake activity, populations across locations, weather patterns, and extraterrestrial storms. eLiS scales and translates lists of information into MIDI pitch, velocity, on-times, duration, and channels, among other parameters, to audibly observe.
- [2007] a·morph·ous, algorithmic composer
Transformative algorithmic compositional software written under the mentorship of David Cope and his Experiments in Musical Intelligence, with the original intent to produce new symphonic works in the styles of Gustav Mahler and Béla Bartók. Developed as a model, the software recognizes patterns in rhythm, note order, and melodic, harmonic and contrapuntal progressions, producing new music in the style of the input data set. Developed as three analysis systems: polyphonic without rhythm for intractability, polyphonic with rhythm utilizing a Markov decision model, and polyphonic with rhythm and measure structure utilizing a Markov model while constraining analysis to smaller segments for less divergent composition.

- [2006] Legends The Game, complete sound design.
- [2006] IMPULSION, electroacoustic improvisation and field recording soundscape Multi-channel installation of an improvised performance of a self-designed percussion instrument and found sounds processed by self-designed impulse responses captured at their original recording location.
- [2006] Viriconium, Muse Gallery, Chicago, IL.
Autonomous and interactive prepared percussion and synthesis installation utilizing a recursive feedback instrument.
- [2005] Scientist, Dub Producer Hopeton Brown, Engineer.
- [2005] Girl on a Train, McGonigal's, Barrington, IL. Live electronics, sound and light experiments with live electronic ensemble 7 League Boots.
- [2004] Explorer Smart Globe, LeapFrog, Sound Designer and Editor (contract).
- [2004] Colour and Silence, The Onion, Chicago, IL. Electronic performance, live electronics, sound and light experiments, noisemakers, controllers, drum kit.
- [2004] String diSection, interactive music concatenation system developed within a game engine.
- [2003] C², Lilly's, Chicago, IL. Electronic performance, laptop, physical objects, electronics, controllers, drum kit.
- [2002] C², Ex'pression Center for New Media, Emeryville, CA.
Installation of electronic music, tape experiments and live performance.
- [2002] Sting, Arranger, Rock for the Rainforest, Rainforest Foundation Concert, Carnegie Hall, New York, NY. Reconceptualization of previously composed work. Worked with Musical Director Narada Michael Walden on high profile conversancy benefit spearheaded by Sting and Trudie Styler.
- [2002] Carole King, Arranger, Rock for the Rainforest, Carnegie Hall, New York, NY.
- [2002] Smokey Robinson, Arranger, Rock for the Rainforest, Carnegie Hall, New York.
- [2002] Billy Joel, Arranger, Rock for the Rainforest, Carnegie Hall, New York, NY.
- [2002] James Taylor, Arranger, Rock for the Rainforest, Carnegie Hall, New York, NY.
- [2002] Elton John, Arranger, Rock for the Rainforest, Carnegie Hall, New York, NY.
- [2002] Siedah Garrett (Michael Jackson/Madonna), Engineer, Siedah, Los Angeles, CA.
- [2001] About Time, tape effects study. Ex'pression Center for New Media, Emeryville.

- [2000] Jacked Kerowack, music composed by transforming recordings of Jack Kerouac reading his work. Conversely, the spoken word is effected by parameters unique to the newly generated composition.
- [1999] इंडिया, field recording library created throughout Australia and India.
- [1998] Duets, J. Angelo (saxes, flute) C. Colatos (drums/electronics) live 90.7 FM SFPR.
- [1997] صلح, Improvised processed drone ensemble. Whispering Dove, Santa Fe, NM.
- [1997] Blight, Cerrillos Historical Society, Duet, w/ J. Angelo. Cerrillos, NM.
- [1997] Inharmonique, Michael Wilding Gallery, Santa Fe, NM.
Installation, drone, two reel-to-reel tape machines and electronics, experiments in equal temperament, alternative tunings and beating.
- [1996] Percussion Ensemble, International Community School, Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.
- [1996] ጫጫታ, field recording library created throughout East Africa.
- [1996] Baroque Ornaments, Santa Fe Art Institute, Santa Fe, NM.
Artist-in-residence, soundscape installation for tape and projection of reimagined and recorded historical and contemporary local sound.

Selected Writings

- [2017] LEARNING EFFICACY OF MULTIMEDIA IN INTERACTIVE AUGMENTED REALITY ENVIRONMENTS
Augmented Reality is an incipient technology rooted in traditional multimedia with attractive applications for education. Mobile devices travel with billions of people globally, and the inherently mobile nature of AR, with its simple and inexpensive implementation relative to the potentialities exhibited for pervasive, personal and connected learning, indicate that it is poised to supplement the future of multimodal educational dissemination. In the present study, the learning efficacy of multimedia forms within interactive augmented reality environments was explored. The results are of importance for identifying educational quality when employing emergent practices. This information may be of value for educators, instructional designers, and learners seeking to utilize empirical evidence as the basis of educational design decisions and learning strategies. The study isolated media types within AR experiences and evaluated their efficacy for learning.
- [2016] ADAPTIVE LEARNING DESIGN IMPLICATIONS: EFFECTS OF MULTIMEDIA ON LEARNING EFFICACY AND COGNITIVE LOAD
An experimental and data-driven study to inform effective adaptive learning domain model development decisions with an incipient exploration of cognitive load and learning efficacy when utilizing multimedia stimuli. The systems underlying these platforms rely on sophisticated feedback of human interaction, educational theory, learning analytics and educational data mining. The pilot is comprised of an overview of the proposed research, relevant literature of orthogonal and intersecting agendas, imbricated methodological experimentation, data processing and anticipated challenges. Results demonstrate that media types and combinations of media exhibit varying cognitive load, consequently impacting learning efficacy.
